Butler continues forward with Michigan charge

Brett Butler is slowly making a charge to the front in the point standings after another solid finish at a track he has never seen before.

Butler rallied from a 32nd place qualifying effort to finish with another solid top 25 in the 24th position.

“It was a hot one out there. The team fought with a tight race truck in practice but when the race came about we were way loose. We were able to tweak on it throughout the race and finish right about in the middle. The good thing is we are all learning and getting better each and every week,” stated Butler.

Brett has now placed his Fuel Doctor USA Chevy in the 16th position in the driver standings, closing in on the elite ranking of the Top 15 and also moved up in the Owner Standings to the 21st position and within striking distance of the Top 20.

The team will now work on the trucks to make them better over the next month as racing resumes in the NASCAR Camping World Truck Series on July 11th at Iowa Speedway.

“We have taken some good notes and we have been able to get a handle on what Brett likes in his setups. We are not even half way through the season and we feel we are at a great place for Brett and this team,” stated Rick Ware.
